Press Release, 13 February 2004

Joint solution will manage any kind of service as well as complex business processes and value chains enabling creation of new marketing schemes

ERIS4, a leading developer of super powerful cross-industry and multi-domain rating products, today announced the unveiling of an integration project whose purpose is to integrate WARP4 into the rechargeable service management solution that Atos Origin is promoting throughout South Europe, Middle East and Africa. WARP4 is ERIS4's super powerful rating engine specifically designed to manage both prepaid and postpaid services

The ERIS4 software has been completely integrated within the Atos Origin Rechargeable solution and is provided under OEM agreement.

The joint solution provides a comprehensive environment for managing traditional and innovative services, critical business processes and complex value chains. This environment supports any recharging method, including credit cards, vouchers, debit cards, cash, mileage/loyalty points, and provides an extremely efficient authorization process for minimizing exposure to fraud.

According to an Atos Origin internal report "WARP4 ability to rate traditional as well as innovative services carrying out, at the same time and with virtually no latency, complex authorization policies is key to enhancing our solution within the region. We were impressed by the power and flexibility of the ERIS4 technology. Adding such a technology into our solution provides a real tangible value for our customers; the joint solution will reduce the overall solution price, accelerating time to market, keeping our customers' marketing schemes a step ahead the competition".

"Being selected by the rechargeable services market leader as new rating engine is a terrific opportunity", said Giorgio Santini, ERIS4 VP Engineering. "The reputation and strong presence of Atos Origin in the SEMEA region will allow our technology to continuously face and manage real problems for real customers making WARP4 the only network independent solution able to offer a credible rating and authorization product for rechargeable services".

The rechargeable service market is expected to have a strong and rapid growth in the next 36 months. Atos Origin expects that in the traditional telco market alone, more than 1 billion subscribers will use rechargeable services by 2007. According to several analysts, significant untapped revenue opportunities exist in other markets such as finance, retail and entertainment.
